FLETCHER'S

The Store That Pays No Rent

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—In a long and exciting contest with his editors, W. R. Hearst has won his battle to exclude whiskey advertisements from the Morning American and Evening Journal. He announces his victory in a first page editorial in the Journal.

For years it seems Mr. Hearst has waged war against the use of whiskey—he favors light wines and beers—and while the editorial columns were filled with burning words the advertising columns contained laudatory notices of what Mr. Hearst considers the demon.

He published many carefully thought out articles saying that whiskey will intoxicate a man and backed it up by a wired Hal Coffman cartoon showing a man lying in the gutter and a spindly infant picking bread out of a garbage can. His business office, it seems, neutralized his efforts by announcing in the ad columns that a certain well known brand of liquor could be consumed without acquiring a next morning taste like a motorist's glove.

All the barkeepers have been gently jibing Mr. Hearst for this seeming inconsistency for some time and at last he succumbed.

It was on the West Side drive of Central Park that a big white limousine gold initialed and red striped purred its way the other afternoon. On the front seat were the liveried chauffeur and footman. When the car came to a stop, out jumped Gaby Deslys resplendent in one of those tall thousand dollar hats and all ermine suit.

A park lounge watched her as she took dainties from a gold mesh bag to feed the squirrels. With the native New York ability to butt-in he inquired of the chauffeur just who the "skirt" was.

"That," said the menial proudly, "is Gaby Deslys."

"Well," he said, "I saw her act once, and seeing her now, I can readily understand why the Socialist vote is growing." And he walked away.

The Tallyho restaurant is in the shadow of the Waldorf. It was formerly the Astor Stables and those who drink there are seated in the old stalls of the blooded thoroughbreds of the turf. A jockey in flashing colors meets you at the door.

FRUIT

Is Made by Two American Firms in China against Trick of English Traders.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.) TIENTSIN, Jan. 17.—Two American firms here have protested to the United States Minister Reinsch at Peking concerning injustice they have suffered at the hand of the English traders acting under the screen of laws and regulations designed to cut off the trade of England's enemy and its allies. The two complaining firms are exporters of wool and formerly did a large business on Mongolia. At the time the war broke out these firms had extensive contracts for Mongolian wool. There was much delay in effecting the delivery of this wool, and finally the Trans-Siberian railway said that it could not handle it. Russian officials took the position that Russia and its allies needed the wool and could not allow it to be exported by the Americans.

However, the complaining firms say that an English concern doing business in China and Mongolia was permitted to purchase the wool under contract to the Americans, had it hauled out on the Russian railway shipped it to the United States and realized a handsome profit on the transaction.

Similar complaints have been made by American exporters in other Chinese ports, who insist that the English firms are using war regulations for their selfish ends and doing great injustice to neutrals in China.

JOURNALISTS

Of London Are Seeing Active Service in the British Army and Navy.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.) LONDON, Jan. 17.—The official organ of the Institute of Journalists publishes a roll of honor showing that 1,468 journalists are on active service in the army or navy, including eighty-five from overseas. Fifty-five have been killed, seventy-one wounded, eleven reported missing, and ten have been decorated for gallantry.

Many woman journalists are serving with the Red Cross. It is hoped to publish a complete roll of journalists with the colors at the end of the war.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA. At Rules held in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Harrison County, on Monday, the 27th day of December, 1915, the following order was entered:

William Morgan, plaintiff, vs. J. L. Barnes and J. V. Thompson, defendants.

Object of suit. To subject the lands and personal estate of the defendants, situate in the counties of Marion, Harrison, Doddridge, Monongalia, Ohio and Wetzel, in the State of West Virginia, to the payment of the lien by attachment for the sum of $750.00, and the costs of this suit, in favor of the plaintiff.

And it appearing from an affidavit filed in said cause that said J. L. Barnes and J. V. Thompson are non-residents of this State, it is ordered that they do appear within one month from the date of the first publication of this order and do what is necessary to protect their interests herein.

Given under my hand this 28th day of December, 1915.

L. WADE COFFMAN, Clerk.

JOHN L. HECKMER, Counsel for Plaintiff.

the other day with a friend who has a highly developed sense of humor. He looked all about the stables and as he took his seat in the stall remarked: "Well, here is one restaurant where they provide you with a proper setting to do your kicking."

Robert Emmett MacAlarney, the brilliant city editor of the Tribune, is also a short story writer. Not long ago one of his reporters brought in a yarn that needed polishing and MacAlarney turned it back to the writer.

"Put a little pep into this," he urged.

The reporter noticed on his desk a returned manuscript from a big magazine with blue pencil instructions for MacAlarney to make changes before acceptance.

"This seems to be our receiving day, Chief," he said slyly.

It was in a vaudeville booking office on Broadway that E. M. Robinson said to Johnny Collins: "Did you book that mind reader for Toledo, John?"

"No I didn't get to see him. I was over in Brooklyn looking at an act."

"Well he waited around here a couple of hours, but I guess it doesn't matter. He must be a bun mind-reader. He didn't know you were not coming."

WHAT WEAK WOMEN NEED

We Have It in a Remedy Containing the Three Oldest and Most Famous Tonics Known.

Vinol contains the three oldest and most famous tonics known to medicine, viz.—the medical extractives of fresh cod livers, without oil, peptonate of iron and beef peptone.

That is why Vinol is such a wonderful remedy for weak, run-down persons, feeble old people, delicate children, and to restore strength after sickness. Read this testimony:

Savannah, Ga. "I was weak, nervous, run-down, had no appetite, and could not sleep. I had tried medicines without any benefit, and one day the nurse asked me to try Vinol. I did so and it made me feel like a new woman. It has restored my strength and I can do all my own housework. I would not take anything for the good Vinol has done me."—Sarah White.

We return money in every such case where Vinol fails to benefit the purchaser.—Stone and Mercer, Drugists, Clarksburg, W. Va.—Advertisement.
